Local Conversations: NEW AMERICANS + U.S.

The U.S. is home to nearly 34 million lawful immigrants and another 11 million people who are undocumented, according to data from Pew Research Center. Putting political and policy discussions aside, it is time that Utahns talk about how we welcome people to the neighborhood.

Presented by The University of Utah Center for Research on Migration & Refugee Integration, in partnership with The City Library-Marmalade Branch and 90.9fm KRCL, this new conversation series will further community discussions about topics linked to immigration. We will explore the journeys of individual refugees through film, consider the impact of DACA on students in Utah, and discuss the upcoming U.S. Census and Utah's part in providing household information.

Driven by requests from community members, the following events offer the opportunity to meet and understand the needs of new Americans among us, as well as their contributions.

“Why is My Information Needed for the U.S. Census?”

September 26, 2018 | 7:00 – 8:00 pm

Marmalade Library, 280 West 500 North, Salt Lake City

Panelists: Evan Curtis/Utah Governor's Office, Amy Dott Harmer/Utah Refugee Connection, Luis Garza/Comunidades Unidas, and Samira Harnish/Women of the World

Moderator: Lara Jones/90.9fm KRCL

“Annual Update on the Impact of U.S. Immigration Policy”

January 30, 2019 | 7:00 – 8:00 pm

Marmalade Library, 280 West 500 North, Salt Lake City

The goal of this conversation is to ensure that communities in Utah have an understanding about the legal impact and ramifications on individuals and families with immigrant or refugee backgrounds. More information about this event is forthcoming.
